Cardinal to Turn First Sod Of Hospital Building Friday

His Eminence James Cardinal McGuigan, D.D., Archbishop of Toronto, will turn the first sod for the new addition to St. Joseph's Hospital at 2 p.m. tomorrow. The ceremony will take place in the garden near the Mayo Singh Walk, and will mark the beginning of active building.

A special luncheon commemorating the 70th anniversary of the hospital will precede the ceremony. Officials of church and state will attend the luncheon.

WHARF STREET PIER

The new is taking the place of the old at Wharf Street. Enterprise Wharf, probably one of the oldest landmarks of the city, has disappeared under the demolishing power of heavy hammers and crowbars. In its place is being built a new pier and building for Vancouver Barge and Transportation Co. Ltd.

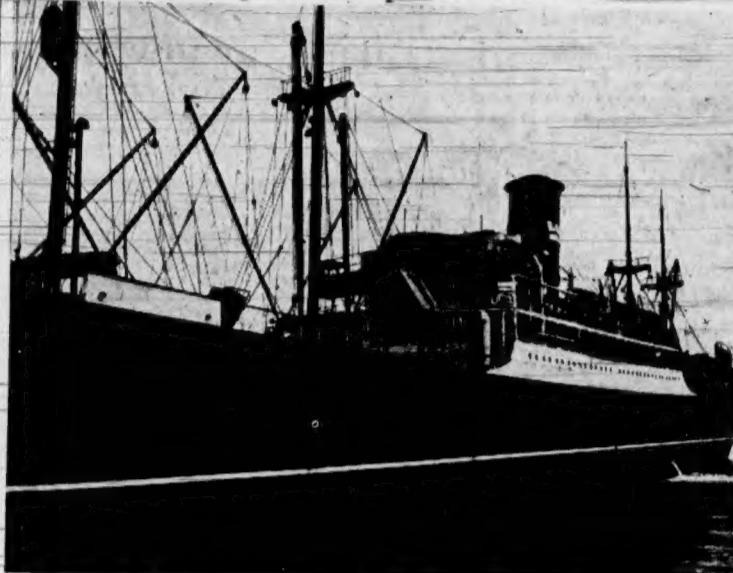

The project is half completed, and the tug company expects to move into new offices within six weeks, according to J. Lindsay, manager of the firm. A warehouse, two slipways, and truck-level loading facilities will be incorporated into the new dock.

It was a short-lived romance. Several days ago the city received a letter from a young Californian who had met a Victoria girl in the Southern state while she was holidaying there. He knew only that her name was Sheila, and that she drove an Austin.

The mystery, and the romance, ended yesterday when 19-year-old Sheila returned on the afternoon boat from Seattle. She would not comment on the matter. Her mother said: "As far as Sheila is concerned, the whole thing has been forgotten."

Repairs Completed, Ship Will Leave for Russia

A NOTHER major repair job has come to a satisfactory end at Victoria Machinery Depot Co. Ltd.

Early this morning, the 18,000-ton Russian cableship Ss. Felix Dzerzhinsky is scheduled to ease out of her berth at the Outer Wharf shipyard, where the big repair and re-conversion job was carried out.

She is pictured above making ready to depart. Her crew, including about 15 women, remained on board ship while she was tied up here.

In her holds are 20 tons of medical supplies, bound for Russia, and sent to that country through arrangements made with the United Nations Rehabilitation and Relief Administration. The supplies were loaded here.

Teacher Shortage Acute But City Situation Good

No difficulty is anticipated in filling the few remaining vacancies for teaching positions in the Greater Victoria school system, J. F. K. English, municipal inspector of schools, stated yesterday.

A few weeks ago the situation in Victoria was considerably less favorable, the inspector said, but several appointments were made recently and at present schools are almost completely staffed.

"There seems to be no lack of applicants for teaching positions in Victoria," Mr. English said, "but most of these do not come up to the high standards we have set."

Elsewhere in the Province, especially the rural areas, an acute shortage of teachers exists.

WORSE THAN DURING WAR

Dr. C. B. Conway, of the Teachers' Summer School here, said the shortage in British Columbia would be worse than at any time during the war. He added that while the larger centres of Victoria and Vancouver have their full quota of teachers, the difficulties lie in the rural areas where salaries are lower.

There are shortages in other Western provinces.

In Prince Albert, Sask., about 25 per cent of the vacancies will remain unfilled.

Predicting 400 vacancies in Alberta public schools next September, education department officials have prepared to pool the teachers in needy communities. Pupils without teachers will be enrolled for correspondence courses and will take daily lessons under the direction of a correspondence supervisor."

PERMITTEES TO AID IN MANITOBA

In Manitoba the shortage of 275 fully-qualified teachers will be made up of "permittees" (high school graduates without training and also some who have taken a six weeks' summer course).

Neil A. McKinnon Dies Suddenly

Neil Alexander McKinnon, 2322 Wark Street, aged 49, passed away suddenly at his home yesterday.

For many years a prominent member of many military and civilian bands, Mr. McKinnon was born in Hamilton, Ont., June 30, 1897. He served with the 88th Victoria Fusiliers during the Great War and was a member of the 16th Canadian Scottish Pipe Band from 1921 to 1927.

He was drum major of the 5th B.C. Coast Brigade, R.C.A., trumpet band from 1927 to 1939, and drum major of the Fraternal Order of Eagles Band here from its inception in 1941. He had been an employee of the New Method Laundry for the past 19 years.

Surviving are his wife, Grace, at home; one sister, Mrs. F. S. Downard, Bellington; one brother, Sandy, Burlington, and four nephews.

Funeral services will be held at McCall Bros. Funeral Chapel Saturday afternoon at 3, followed by cremation at Royal Oak Burial Park.

Salmon Catches At 3-Year Low

Both fishermen and fish companies are disappointed about the salmon fishing in waters off British Columbia.

Salmon fishing accounts are going to wind up "in the red" unless catches improve on a major scale this coming week.

An outline of the dismal picture was painted yesterday by A. Carr, manager of Kyngott Trollers' Cooperative Association.

Figures released from offices of A. J. Motherwell, Chief Supervisor of Fisheries, Vancouver, show that the salmon pack for districts 1, 2 and 3 have hit a three-year low.

Unfavorable weather conditions are blamed for the disappointing season. There was plenty of rain during June, and it was colder than usual. This, it is reported, tends to drive the salmon to waters too deep for fishing.

Sockeye salmon are due, according to past records, in the Nairn and Skeena Rivers. So far, very few have made an appearance. Usually good grounds off the West Coast of Vancouver Island have also proved lacking in the silver-scaled beauties.

Salmon were running quite heavily in more northern waters last week, but the catches suddenly dropped. Fishermen are now banking on some big landings on the Fraser River catch. The season for these waters opens August 8.

Okanagan's Loss

Fruit and vegetable growers on Vancouver Island, where hail is a nine days' wonder, will understand and sympathize with the Okanagan's great loss in the disastrous hail storm which swept away $1,770,000 worth of matured tree fruits and ground crops overnight. It was the second time that the south-central part of British Columbia has been visited by ill fortune this year. At the start of the picking season a lumber strike made boxes and box trucks unavailable, with some serious consequences to many growers. The hail storm, with stones as large as eggs, did more damage and suddenly it was the worst storm recorded in the history of the district for many years.

Analyzing the damage done in the freak storm, Okanagan tree fruit and vegetable officials estimate that some 1,160,000 packages of apples, peaches, prunes, pears, crab-apples and apricots were destroyed among the tree fruits; while large amounts of tomatoes, cucumbers and onions were destroyed on the ground. Onion stalks were cut in two by the hail, and other ground crops badly beaten down. There will be some recovery in these areas, but great quantities of fruit and vegetables have been destroyed outright, with a severe loss there to the growers in the current season.

By areas, the storm was widespread. Kelowna, Summerland, Okanagan Mission, Rutland, Winfield and some other divisions of the main orchard districts of British Columbia, were all in the path of the hail. What slight percentage of the loss may be covered by insurance is not related. Even so, the destruction of so much good fruit and green vegetables will be a blow to everyone, and a gain to none. The sincere sympathy of Vancouver Island communities will go out to the Okanagan Valley in its hard luck.

A Fine Career

Frank J. Sehl, for twenty-eight years in the Provincial Civil Service but retiring this week, will carry with him the sincere good wishes of the community, one in whose interest he has not flagged. Associated with the beginnings of the Arion Club, the Canadian Club and the Rotary Club in Victoria, Mr. Sehl has given outstandingly fine service to the community over a period of nearly half a century. He is well known as Provincial Assessor, having been associated with the Assessor's and Collector's branch at the Legislative Buildings for more than a quarter of a century.

"Frank" to a legion of friends, Mr. Sehl has many interests, and has been active in all of them. Clubmen know him for his work in executive posts, and for his life-habits of going considerably more than half way to help in any situation. Universally respected and liked, Mr. Sehl was one of the city's outstanding athletes in his early days, and has retained his interest in all that has to do with the youth of the community. His great services to the Arion Club and to the Canadian Club will not soon be forgotten, even if Mr. Sehl is allowed to retire from these efforts, which is most unlikely.

As a Civil Servant, Mr. Sehl has been a fine example to two generations of men in public office, and the trusted adviser of successive Provincial administrations in a responsible department of Government dealing with taxation.

Unjust Stigma

Several Canadian newspapers have drawn attention to the injustice done by publication of names of individuals said to be suspected of complicity in espionage, without formal charges being laid against them. This proceeding is contrary to all concepts of Canadian law, which presupposes a person to be innocent until he is found guilty, and which does not condone accusation without trial. An unjust stigma could possibly be attached to innocent individuals, and perhaps for life.

Publication of the report of the Espionage Commission named certain persons as being connected with the transfer of secret information to a foreign power. Their identities have been made known throughout the Dominion. No court action has been taken against them. They have not been told whether they will be accused of any specific act of treason, and have therefore no opportunity for defence.

As the Ottawa Evening Citizen says: "The stigma thus attached to them is obvious. What was the necessity of it? The Royal Commission was in duty bound to report its findings and its evidence to the Government in accordance with the terms of reference. But the Government was not bound to give out the names mentioned in the report nor indeed to publish any of the evidence until it was produced publicly in court."

"Some of the suspects are now to be tried; some may never be accused. The first group will be at a disadvantage in the event of a jury trial; the second will have their reputations besmirched and perhaps their careers ruined without an opportunity of proving their innocence."

This is perhaps the most regrettable feature of the episode. It was necessary to bring culprits to light and expose the whole sorry business, but the law of this country provides legitimate channels for so doing. There should have been no need to name individuals allegedly implicated—and then do nothing more about it. Either such names should have been omitted, or their owners should be brought to trial. It is unjust that they should rest under an unproven accusation even for a day.

Memorable Coalition

It is probably Mr. Winston Churchill's acute sense of parliamentary history which prompts him to commemorate Great Britain's wartime Coalition Government by presenting a medallion to all members of that famous administration. The former Prime Minister has often declared himself to be a child of the House of Commons, and no man living has keener appreciation of the British parliamentary system, or is more jealous of its reputation. On one side of the medallion is inscribed: "Salute the great Coalition, 1940-45." On the other side appears the name of the recipient and: "From Winston Churchill."

History will undoubtedly record that the British Coalition of the World War was a memorable one. It had a unity unsurpassed by any other administration in the long history of Great Britain. It was founded and inspired by Mr. Churchill in perhaps the darkest days that ever clouded the people of the British Isles. It drew its strength from its all-inclusive composition. It represented the power and faith of a nation living its "finest hour." It retained and justified throughout five years of crises the confidence of a free people that victory would be won—by self-government at its best.

The Churchill Coalition was an example that in modern war, which involves total effort, the luxury of party government should not be afforded. War is an occasion for closing the ranks in face of a common danger, for creating a unity best obtained by participation of all representative parties. In this way a nation is made to feel its collective shoulder is at the wheel, and there is a totality of effort not otherwise forthcoming. The British wartime Coalition illustrated this beyond cavil or doubt. The Churchill medallion, as a result, commemorates parliamentary government adapted in, perhaps its highest form to the exigencies of great and perilous days.

Life Insurance

Some Canadians evidently worked at their own affairs in the first six months of this year, when $584,375,000 worth of ordinary new life insurance was written throughout Canada. British Columbians contracted for $43,053,000 of that total, according to figures made available by the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association. In June alone, $103,925,000 of new insurance was written in Canada. British Columbia policy holders taking $7,463,000 of that. These are savings programs.

These figures show that the Canadian public is settling down to a form of reconstruction which will be of some benefit in the years ahead. The new policies written did not include group and other forms of special insurance, but only what are termed ordinary policies. The figures indicate Canadian life insurance running to approximately one thousand million dollars in the current year, a creditable showing in these disturbed times. While there are many reasons for insuring one's life, the principle one is protection for the family after the passing of the breadwinner.

It is a sober, steady trait which leads individuals to make sure of such protection while they can, and a fine corrective in days when too many individuals believe that the state should do it all. By this showing, Canadians are thrifty people, and British Columbians, for our population, are near the head of the parade.

Seen in Passing

Canadians read of inflation in the Orient and Europe with easy detachment, as if that could not happen here. Unfortunately it could. Housing that costs twice too much; food that sells for three times its normal value; and queues for cakes, chocolates and automobiles, are all parts of the same trend. Only a hard and exercised public firmness in refusing to buy unless supplied with real value can stem inflation on this continent. It comes down to this: if the dollar is made to do a full dollar's work it will regain the value that is slipping from it a little here and a little there and a little everywhere else. Canadian pioneers were born traders. This generation must learn the art.

Harbor Wanted

Frank M. Kelley

From what one gathers, the odd resident of Greater Victoria is apparently concerned over what all the newcomers arriving to make their homes here are going to do in the way of work. Ostensibly industries are going to be vitally necessary if the influx of recent months continues—something wholly likely from all indications—for it is now generally appreciated throughout this area that more and more people want to make their homes on Vancouver Island, and particularly in this nature-favored section lying between Saanich Inlet and Sheringham Point.

For easy living, whether or not one possesses sufficient capital to get by without manual labor, it is hard to imagine more equitable conditions, climate and eye-pleasing, than this area offers everyone during 12 months of every year. As long as people believe this—they have been told it often enough—Southern Vancouver Island will be a spot of desire.

Ever since this writer can remember, some little time now, efforts have been made to induce others, living in less-favored places, to "pull up stakes" and locate "for keeps" under conditions which folk brought up in temperate climates can really appreciate. This continuous "plugging" of the area charms and climate of Greater Victoria has attracted a considerable number of desirable citizens over the years, but produced nothing comparable to the number now apparently eager to live here and take advantage of our scenic surroundings and climatic advantages.

LOOKING FOR WORK, TOO

At the same time it would appear the new arrivals hope to find something more substantial than scenery and climate and enable them to become identified permanently with Greater Victoria. In other words, the majority of the newcomers are working folk and undoubtedly want to do things. Preferring ideal living conditions, they also want to raise families for the younger members of which profitable employment will be needed when it is time for them to seek a place in the working community, the vital front of every community's life.

To assure this worthwhile objective and perpetuate the steady growth of Southern Vancouver Island it will be most necessary to attract industries and take care of present and future citizens. This can be done without impairing, except may be in very minor ways, the loveliness which a benevolent Creator has lavished so freely on this southern section of Vancouver Island.

The fact that Victoria is on an island doesn't bar it from becoming important industrially. That old argument has been used, of course, with some disadvantage to Great Britain in the past. There is nothing, however, that an equitable adjustment of freight rates, together with barge services, wouldn't remedy and place this city on a respectable parity with other centres of the Pacific Northwest.

All of these matters were much discussed at one time and developments to establish Victoria as a trade centre were actually underway 35 years ago. It is not out of place to state, either, that had there been no Great War the industrial and shipping picture hereabouts would be entirely different from what it is today.

It is also abundantly clear that, wars or no wars, the development of Greater Victoria as an industrial and shipping centre will never be any greater than its citizens desire. If the four municipalities are not interested it is not likely distant outsiders will care. Some local folk are wondering why, at that, the promise having been made months ago, nothing has been done to start the harbor dredging and the building of the fisherman's wharf, not to mention the taking over of Rutherford Pier and carrying out much-needed repairs to Ogden Point piers. Soon the principal need for a fisherman's wharf this season will have passed, while as far as our harbor requirements are concerned, some apparently believe there is time enough to do something about these when matters affecting the Pacific become clarified.

KEY SPOT FOR INDUSTRIES

In the meantime, it should be important to the people of Greater Victoria to do something to provide working opportunities for the young men and women who will be the future citizens of the community. Assuring employment should be a first consideration on the part of municipal councils. Only industries will be able to accomplish this. In order to attract industries, it is necessary that the area have a deep-sea harbor and adequate rail connections. There is nothing impossible in respect of either. Victoria can have the harbor promised years ago if the people will it that way, as well as obtain rail connections if they go after them hard enough. Industry will find its way here then, for geographically the Port of Greater Victoria has many advantages to offer industries seeking markets overseas.

SAFE DRIVING

Sir.—In The Colonist of Sunday, July 28 page 16, is an item in which Chief J. A. MacLellan warns pedestrians against taking chances on on-coming automobiles when crossing the street.

To quote: "Traffic engineers tell us that the average pedestrian who starts to cross the road when an automobile, traveling at 30 miles per hour, is 88 feet away from him, will be hit unless the motorist makes some miracule to avoid him," said the chief. "When the motorist is traveling at only 20 miles an hour, the average pedestrian must be over 38 feet away from the car before he has any chance to cross safely."

From the above quotation, pedestrians must be on the lookout for automobiles when crossing over streets. No word of warning is given that motorists must also be on the lookout for pedestrians, however, which makes it appear that a pedestrian is fair game.

In crossing a street, a pedestrian should do between the white lines. If he or she does not do so, it is termed jaywalking, and against the law. Therefore the only right a pedestrian has on the streets in crossing over is between the above stated white lines, and the onus is on the motorist to drive his car in such a manner that it will be safe for the pedestrian to do so, even stopping, if necessary. This holds true everywhere, and is only common sense.

The car speeds of 20 and 30 miles per hour in the above quotation, are not the important thing. The whole point is, automobiles do travel at speeds enabling them to stop at traffic lights, without difficulty, because it is against the law not to do so. How much more important it is to use the same care where death or crippling of a person might result, otherwise, where there are no traffic lights.

Pedestrians frequently have to cross the streets when there are perhaps a hundred cars in line, passing up and down, where there are no traffic lights. It can easily be seen that a person could hardly stand waiting to cross over indefinitely, and how dangerous it would

Makes a Profession of Standing in Queues

By JOAN LITTLEFIELD

LONDON—Every housewife, rich or poor, reckons to stand in line several hours a day in Britain in order to shop, for everything is short, not only food but the simplest articles such as mending wool and socks.

Now one woman has hit on a new sort of job, shopping for other people and finding the "treasures" in short supply. Many of her customers are invalids or very old.

Estelle Kelway, a tall, elegant woman of 38, with snow-white hair, deals with the requirements of 800 men and women in all parts of the country.

It all began about two years ago when Miss Kelway, invalided out of the Women's Auxiliary Air Force and not yet strong enough to seek regular employment, put an advertisement in a magazine saying she was willing to undertake personal shopping for a small commission. Hundreds of clients soon came to her in London house.

Now Miss Kelway has two full-time assistants and a secretary. Every morning from nine till five, she goes on a round of the shops.

"I usually have about 200 pairs of shoes on my list," she said. "These are what people want most, because they are most difficult to obtain. I am lucky if I get ten pairs in a morning. Next come stockings, usually want two or three dozen pairs, and as I am not allowed to buy more than two pairs in any one store, meeting all my requirements means a good deal of work."

"On my list each day are about 30 items of cosmetics. I am always on the lookout for corsets, elastic hairpins, combs, notebook paper, soap, fountain pens, knitting wool, films for cameras, pipes, sports things and phonograph records. I also buy suits, coats, frocks, hats, even.

"My clients have to send me money and coupons in advance. Some pay $5 a year for my services, plus a fee of 20 per cent for items of $2 and under, 15 per cent for items of between $2 and $4, and 10 per cent for items over $4. Those who do not contribute an annual fee pay 30 per cent, 25 and 20 per cent respectively.

"Besides shopping, I book berths and theatre seats, look for apartments and office accommodation, and arrange hairdressing and beauty parlor appointments for clients who are coming to London. During the war, I sent cigarettes and books to the forces overseas, and sometimes even forwarded their paintings to the Royal Academy Selection Committee."

In the afternoon, Miss Kelway attends to her own correspondence. Most of her clients write her long letters telling her their problems, and asking on all kinds of subjects, from the best way of making a pudding without eggs, to how to chain for sheets damaged in an air raid.

When her clients are in London they go to see her and because of the very great shortage of accommodations she has turned one of her rooms into a bed-sitting room, where houses visiting London can stay a night or two.

Miss Kelway has led a varied life. After taking a degree in domestic science, she went to Paris and won her Cordon Bleu for cookery. While in the French capital she worked for a time as a model and also taught English.

"Then my mother started a small restaurant in Lancaster Gate, London," she said, "and I had to go home and help her."

be if the motorist was not inclined to give him a "break."

Recently it was seen and noted that a badly crippled man was enabled to cross over a street safely by the action of a very lovely girl in a car bearing a California license, who stopped her car a considerable distance away to allow him to do so. Several cars behind her honked their horns impatiently in protest at the delay this caused, but she maintained her kindly position firmly until the lame man had reached the other side.

It should be taken into consideration by all drivers of vehicles that there are recent amputation cases about.

With regard to bringing cars to a complete stop, two automobiles were seen to run right along through an intersection, blasting people out of the way with their horns, including a woman pushing a baby carriage. While a block away, two automobiles came to a complete stop to allow pedestrians to pass.

These cars were local ones. By this, the pedestrian can never be certain what the driver of a car is going to do. Perhaps the driver is not sure either, which certainly should be an argument in favor of motorists coming to a complete stop, as is done elsewhere.

From personal observations, it would seem that the safest vehicle on the streets today, in charge of expert drivers who show people crossing streets every consideration at all times, are the fine drivers of the large bus company in this city. The same cannot be said of other drivers, including drivers of many automobiles. I regret to say.

A pencil-and-notebook or paper carried by every person to write down the automobile licence number of any car breaking traffic regulations, together with a witness, and turning same over to the police department may have the

Senate Representation Reform Likely to Be Tackled Shortly

Ottawa, July 31 (CP)—Several senators have come to the conclusion there must be changes in the representation in the Senate and that the senators themselves should start the ball rolling in that direction.

Senate reform has been advocated since the time of Sir John A. Macdonald by parties in the Opposition, but once in power neither the Liberals nor the Conservatives have done anything about it.

Many senators, however, believe the present situation calls for some definite action if the Senate is to retain public esteem and three factors are forcing an issue.

THREE GOVERNMENTS NOT REPRESENTED

They are:

1. The continual shrinkage in the numerical and debating strength of the Progressive Conservative Opposition.

2. Three provinces are governed by political parties that are not represented in the Senate—Quebec (Union Nationale), Saskatchewan (C.C.F.) and Alberta (Social Credit).

3. The Senate is regarded as the protector of Dominion-Provincial relations. Provincial Governments should have representatives to ex-

Shortages Cause Company Lay-Off

MONTREAL, July 31 (CP)—R. B. Irving, executive vice-president of Fairchild Aircraft, Ltd., said today that construction of prefabricated houses has been discontinued by the company and 400 men have been laid off.

The company, busy with airplanes during the war, took up construction of prefabricated houses after the war ended.

About 100 men are being retained to complete houses still under construction. Shortage of building materials led to the decision to discontinue construction, Irving said.

Another 100 men are at work on the new Fairchild "Huskie," a plane designed for bush flights.

Japan Planned Domination Of Manchukuo

TOKIO, July 31 (CP)—Prosecuting attorneys presented documents today in the war crimes trial of 27 Japanese leaders as evidence that Japan planned to dominate Manchukuo politically, economically and socially.

These documents followed others which disclosed the attitude as early as 1924 of the Kwantung army, the military spearhead of Japanese penetration.

"Let the people follow blindly wild military power if necessary," "bar existence of political parties," "place Japanes in key positions" were among recorded expressions in the documents.

Other documents presented by the prosecution sought to prove that Japan planned to take over the communications business in Manchukuo and institute a monarchial form of government.

In 1934 the development of Manchukuo as the "base of Japan's world-wide economic expansion" was formulated after the League of Nations condemned Japanese action in Manchukuo. That condemnation resulted in Japan's withdrawal from the league.

Ship Explosion Kills Eleven Imperils 1,060

RUA DE JANEIRO, July 31 (AP)—The liner Duque de Caxias, pride of the Brazilian transport fleet, was towed slowly toward this port tonight after a boiler explosion set her afire, killing at least ten sailors and one woman passenger, and imperiling 1,060 other passengers.

The 11,063-ton vessel, until 1944 the American liner Orimba, was devastated by flames before dawn six miles off the coast. The 28-year-old veteran of the seas had served in the invasion of Sicily and in Pacific campaigns, and had helped succor survivors of the British liner Athena, first victim of German submarines in the World War. She went to Brazil on lend-lease.

Several passengers were injured before the British merchantman Dover Hill and Brazilian warships saved them. Three submarine chasers brought 672 survivors to Rio de Janeiro.

The 300 crew members of the Duque de Caxias remained on board and, with the help of 17 warships, three merchantmen and two planes, beat down the flames and kept them from eating to the oil stores. The navy said that preventable damage to the vessel.

Australian Elections Expected To Produce Vigorous Campaign

CANBERRA, July 31 (CP)—The Australian general elections Sept. 28 will be fought largely on domestic issues such as taxation, postwar production and industrial unrest, but a vigorous campaign is anticipated.

Re-election will be sought by Prime Minister Chifley's Labor Government, which has a 2-1 majority in the Australian Parliament over its opposition of Liberal and Country party members.

Promising lower taxes and critical of Labor's record in reconverting industry to peacetime output, the Liberals under Robert Menzies and the Country party headed by Arthur Fadden will campaign jointly for a combined majority over Labor in the House of Representatives.

Harbor Cities Interested In "Free Port" System

OTTAWA, July 31 (CP)—Just how that magic key to free commerce—the free port—applies to Canada's ocean gateway in these days of growing exports and a general disposition to knock down world trade barriers is not widely apparent.

But some ports—notably Quebec and Halifax and Saint John, N.B.—have gone on record as supporting the idea. Others, such as Montreal, Vancouver and Victoria, have expressed a keen interest, and Transport Minister Chevrier recently announced in the Commons that an inter-departmental committee headed by J. Emile St. Laurent, vice-chairman of the National Harbor Boards, is studying briefs from several of the ports and will have a report for the next session of Parliament.

Meanwhile, Quebec has taken the lead in the agitation and is showering parliamentarians and trade boards throughout the country with doggers urging a free zone near the old citadel.

While not so vocal, Halifax and Saint John also have made bids.

Transport Minister Chevrier has been non-committal on the project because it was under study by the inter-departmental committee.

BELIEVE ENTHUSIASM MAY BE COOLED

The spirit of enthusiasm for free port zones, in the opinion of some capital circles, may be cooled when the full implications of freer international trade are discussed at the World Trade Conference scheduled for next Spring. Free ports may be one of the subjects on the agenda and the necessity of their operation under new economic concepts may be discussed.

Most persons have a hazy idea of the general definition of a free port as a place in which merchants of all nations may load and unload goods, unaffected by the country's customs regulations as long as the goods remain in the free port zone.

A United States department once gave this fuller definition:

"A free port is a segregated, fenced and guarded area in which goods not otherwise prohibited may be unloaded and stored, subject to varying restrictions as to sorting, grading, repacking, manipulation and manufacture, and in which such goods, or authorized manufactures therefrom, may be reloaded and shipped to foreign destinations, all without the imposition of the customs formalities and duties applicable to similar goods entering customs territory."

Speaking during debate on second reading of the Pensions Act, Mr. Green said veterans now were being denied pensions on the grounds that their disability was of pre-enlistment origin. He had attempted to have the bill amended while it was before the veterans' committee. He would renew his attempt when the bill reached the committee of the whole House.

A veteran of the Great War, Mr. Green said medical examinations in the World War were much stiffer than those during the Great War. He felt that if a veteran of the recent war was accepted as medically unfit, any deterioration in health thereafter should be attributed to service and not to pre-enlistment condition.

Some 54,207 with service in Canada only had been discharged as medically unfit and they were not entitled to any pension either.

He urged that the dependents of deceased veterans be provided with funds so that it could carry on assistance to needy veterans and their dependents.

Mr. Green suggested that veterans preference be extended to the thousands of veterans who did not come under the Civil Service Commission, such as positions in Crown companies.

Auditor General Smith said that at December 31, 1945, there were 7,810 veterans and overseas service who had been discharged as medically unfit, yet were not granted any pension entitlement because of a pre-enlistment condition.

Weddings

MARRIED IN HALIFAX

The marriage took place recently in St. Patrick's Church, Halifax, N.S., of Miss Margaret Mary Younes, daughter of Mrs. Susan Younes and the late Mr. A. C. Younes, to James Waller, only son of Mrs. Elizabeth A. Waller, 2408 Wark Street, Victoria, and the late M. C. H. Waller.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in St. Mark's Hall. The couple left later by plane for a honeymoon in New York. They will make their home in Halifax for the present.

Red Cross Carries On Work in China

The Canadian Red Cross, which in the past has done much to help the Chinese people, is continuing the work through a committee set up recently there to administer the Canadian-Chinese War-Relief contributions.

Dr. A. Stewart Allen, of Montreal, who recently returned to Canada after establishing the committee, has listed some of the work already done by the Canadian Red Cross in this field. Through its name and facilities it assisted the Canadian Chinese War Relief Fund to raise $2,111,089, and from this money had made purchases and shipments to China for the Canadian Chinese War Relief.

Rich Dress Fabrics Slated for Canada

reception was held in time for Fall wear but the Canadian lady of fashion can look forward to including luxurious English dress fabrics in her Spring wardrobe.

That's the word from F. Michael Gugenheim and Colin B. George, directors of a large fabrics concern in London, England, who are in Toronto this week with samples.

They say British designs on British wools and rayons which few British women will be able to don will start to reach Canada about November.

Once a specialty of France, these dress fabrics now are being manufactured in England; most of them destined for export. Colors are muted to soft blue, greyed greens and taupey rusts and browns.

Designs are carried out in lacquer on both wools and rayons. Another process is "wool block" printing, with fine blocks of wool blown with adhesive on to the fabric to carry out the design.

For formal glitter, fine particles of colorful glass and sequins are blown on to sheer chiffons and rayons. One pattern has a myriad of sparkling clusters on a black background and goes under the name of "Hawaiian Nights."

Allow Marriages In Occupied Lands

LONDON, July 31 (CP)—Lord

Nathan, War Under-Secretary, today announced British servicemen would be permitted to marry women of any occupied enemy country except Japan. Permission to wed enemy women, however, would be limited to cases where reasons for marriage are good and there are no security objections."

A.T.S. Major Visits War Bride Daughter

cessation of war did not mean a holiday for Mrs. Ward Campbell, first woman to hold the rank of major in Britain's Auxiliary Territorial Service.

As a representative of the Overers League, Mrs. Campbell, who is visiting her daughter here, helped arrange hospitality throughout England for repatriated prisoners-of-war celebrating a long overdue "leave."

For five years Mrs. Campbell was an officer in the First Aid Nursing Yeomanry of the A.T.S. Such work involved driving, servicing cars and instruction. She said it was really an achievement on the part of women when they were allowed to transport ammunition in addition to manning staff cars and ambulances.

Red Cross Notes

After six years of work the 20 working members of the Shirley Red Cross Unit held their final meeting at the end of June.

Total value of hospital supplies donated by Red Cross women workers amounted to $182,989, and to date the Canadian Red Cross itself has furnished $283,469 for Chinese relief work.

During this period, the sum of $2,383,12, 410 knitted articles, 2,370 sewn articles, 23 donations and several bundles for Britain, with 51 blankets made from wool scraps collected by members were turned in to headquarters.

It was suggested that Mrs. P. Pedneault, president, Mrs. H. F. Anderson, vice-president and Mrs. T. Pefron, secretary-treasurer carry on as a committee for any emergency that may arise in the future.

film offerings, International Pictures' "Tomorrow Is Forever," opening today at the Atlas Theatre, stars Claudette Colbert, Orson Welles and George Brent in a dramatic story of mother-love and domestic perplexities. Laid in Baltimore over a period of some 21 years, the plot turns on the disappearance of a bridegroom during World War One and his return to take a decisive hand in determining the career of his grown-up son.

Richard Long, the screen's newest "discovery," plays the role of the son in this RKO Radio release which was directed by Irving Pichel and based upon Gwen Branson's novel.

Hopalong Cassidy Comes To the Rio Today

The rugged Alabama Hills region near Lone Pine, Calif., heard again the rattle of furious gunfire during production of the third "Hopalong Cassidy" Western drama, Goodwill's "Bar 20 Rides Again," which will open today at the Rio Theatre. More than 50 cowboy-actors, headed by William Boyd and Jimmy Ellison, who are co-starred in Clarence E. Mulford's story, used rifles and revolvers in the battle between the ranchers and the notorious "Nevada's" cattle-rustling gang.

Your Health and Your Weight

TREATMENT OF VARIOUS TYPES OF OVERWEIGHT

I try not to write about the gland type of overweight because nine of all ten overweights can reduce their weight by reducing their food intake or increasing their exercise. Of the 10 per cent who cannot readily reduce their weight by cutting down on food and increasing exercise, only half are true or complete gland cases and the other half can reduce their weight to some extent by reducing the amount of food eaten.

However, there are some of these gland types of overweight, whose excess fat is not entirely on the unusual parts of the body caused by definite gland deficiencies, who try their best to reduce weight by cutting down on food intake without much success who would get rid of much of their excess fat comfortably and safely if they were given some gland extract.

If there is great lack of thyroid extract with great mental dullness, excess fat over entire body, dry, rough, waxy skin, constipation and slow pulse, the condition is recognized by the physician and after a metabolism test the patient is given thyroid extract daily. But if there is only a slight lack of thyroid extract, the patient may be just slightly dull mentally, be only slightly overweight and have simply a rough skin. It can thus be seen that none of the family will ever think about the thyroid gland being deficient and so will not suggest a visit to the physician, who would likely arrange for a metabolism test if consulted.

If the metabolism test shows even a slight lack of thyroid activity the physician may prescribe a small dose of thyroid extract daily by mouth. With the diet reduced and the thyroid increasing the rate at which body processes work, there often follows a gradual and satisfactory loss of weight.

Where the pituitary gland, lying on the floor of the skull, is inactive, instead of the excess fat being found all over the body it is just in certain parts—across shoulders and chest, over abdomen, over thighs, upper arms—but not excess fat on forearms or legs below knee. In these cases injections of extract of the anterior or front part of pituitary gland of animals is given and the effect, while not as effective as with the thyroid overweight, shows fair results.

Where there is lack of male sex gland extract the excess fat is in chest, abdomen and hips, giving to some extent the appearance of a woman. In these cases, injections of male sex gland extract remove much of the excess fat from these regions and the other male characteristics of the body develop.

In overweight in women caused by lack of sex gland extract, the excess fat is across hips and thighs while the breasts are undeveloped. The case of ovary extract in these cases usually brings about development of the body.

Follow these simple suggestions, and you will turn out portrait snapshots that will be the pride of the regiment.—John van Guilder.

In overweight in women caused by lack of sex gland extract, the excess fat is across hips and thighs while the breasts are undeveloped. The case of ovary extract in these cases usually brings about development of the body.

Follow these simple suggestions, and you will turn out portrait snapshots that will be the pride of the regiment.—John van Guilder.

ment of breasts and loss of fat across hips and thighs.

What must be remembered, of course, is that there may be two or more glands that are underactive so that thyroid and pituitary or thyroid and sex gland extract may be needed to obtain results in some cases.

As stated before, in-all cases of overweight, whether caused by overeating or lack of gland extract or both, the food intake is "always" reduced. It is a mistake to treat any or all kinds of overweight by the use of gland extracts or the drugs dinitrophenol, digitalis and benzedrine sulfate without reducing the food intake and increasing the exercise where it is safe to do so.

SUGAR PREVENTS WEAKNESS WHILST REDUCING

If you were to ask an overweight why he had remained a full diet after failing to lose weight on a reducing diet, he would, in the majority of cases, say that it was because he felt so weak in thought he would fall apart. And the reason he has this weak feeling is that he has been cutting down on the energy giving, yet fat producing foods—sugar, potato, pastry and bread. These foods must be eaten daily by everybody whether thin, fat, or of normal weight.

But what the overweight ignores or fails to remember is that, because he has excess fat on his body, he can safely do without a considerable amount of these fat forming foods as Nature will supply the energy needs of his body by using some of this excess fat stored in and on his body. Further, aside from the fat stored in fat depots in the body, Nature also stores sugar—our greatest and quickest energy giving food—in various storage depots and this sugar will give him the energy he needs when his food intake is reduced. These sugar storage depots are in the liver, muscles, skin and other tissues.

Almost from the beginning of going on a reducing diet most overweights begin to feel weak and with this weak feeling comes a nervousness that may frightened them into resuming the normal diet immediately and their first thought is often a good feed of candy or sugar. There is nothing that will give energy so quickly and nothing that pleases the overweight quite so much as eating some candy or sugar and thus putting away from them the "mean" reducing diet.

I have spoken before of how some physicians in the treatment of overweight sometimes allow the patient to eat a large amount of candy or sugar once in a while to offset the great craving for sugar so often present. As a matter of fact, some physicians allow their patients a few lumps of sugar, a chocolate bar, or a couple of chocolates once a day, usually at 4 p.m. to ease the craving but, more particularly to overcome the weak feeling and give enough energy to tide him over until the evening meal. Other physicians prescribe sugar or candy more than once a day, in fact several times, in an effort to supply needed energy, prevent weakness, and so encourage the patient to continue his efforts to reduce weight.

One of the plans of using candy or sugar in reducing weight, mentioned before, consists of cutting down the usual diet by one-half and giving sugar when there are symptoms of fatigue, hunger, weakness, or nervousness caused by lack of sugar in the blood.

The daily diet consists of clear soup, a liberal helping of vegetables, two or three pieces of bread and butter, one average portion of meat, two glasses of milk and one orange. In addition each patient takes about an ounce of sugar (8 level teaspoons) daily, in the form of loaf sugar or frosting, each dosage containing about half a teaspoon—one teaspoon being dissolved in the mouth. Every half hour from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., 2:30 to 5:30 p.m., and 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. Liquids are cut down as much as possible. No food is taken between meals except sugar mentioned.

This method of reducing weight not only relieves the hungry, nervous, weak feeling but is really a safeguard whilst reducing.

LONDON, July 31 (CP)—Reuters News Agency tonight quoted "reliable sources" to the effect that the British Labor Government had decided against the complete nationalization of the iron and steel industry.

Because of the difficulties encountered in inducing government industrialists to serve on a national administrative board for the industry, the Government instead would require a controlling interest in the industry, which then would be administered by a board of Government nominees, owners and trade unions, the news agency said.

Power Plant For Quesnel

Completion of an agreement between the British Columbia Power Commission and the provincially-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway Company for lease of a site for a new power plant for the growing railway terminal city of Quesnel was announced yesterday by Premier John Hart.

Site of the new Diesel plant will include the location of the present near the bank of the Quesnel River.

Concurrently, the Premier announced decision to install a 120-horsepower Diesel engine at Golden to supplement generating capacity until the new plant planned for Golden is completed.

PETER DOESN'T KNOW WHAT TO MAKE OF HIS FRIENDS

Peter Rabbit scampered back to the Old Orchard much faster than he had left there. You see, Peter was in a hurry to get back with his friends. He felt that he had made good. He had proven to them that their fear of what they had supposed was a flying giant was quite groundless. You know Peter had discovered that it wasn't a giant at all, but a machine made by man. The others hadn't believed him, so to prove that it was true Peter had gone right up to that machine and rested on the Green Meadows near the dear Old Briar Patch.

"They'll all believe me now and be tickled to death to think they no longer need fear the flying giant," thought Peter as he hurried along. "I guess they'll be glad that I found out about it. They didn't think that I would dare go over to it, but I showed them that I knew what I was talking about."

When Peter reached the Old Orchard the first person he saw was Sammy Jay. "You see I was right," cried Peter triumphantly. "What do you think Sammy Jay?" He turned his back on Peter and began talking with Drummer the Woodpecker, who had just come up. "Any one with any common sense at all would know just to look at it that thing couldn't be alive," said Sammy. "It fooled me the first time I saw it, but when I stopped to think it over, I knew of course that it was something man made."

People wouldn't have anything to do with him

"Certainly," replied Drummer. "It was rather startling at first, but I guess most of us soon saw that it was nothing to be afraid of, unless it was the man in it."

Peter Rabbit pricked up his ears and started to say something. Then he thought better of it and went to hunt up some of his other neighbors. Wherever he went he received the same treatment. People wouldn't have anything to do with him. You would have thought that instead of doing something kind in proving to them that there was nothing to fear. Peter had done them an injury. You see the trouble was it hurt the pride of every one of them when he wasn't afraid. Also it hurt their feelings to have Peter prove them in the wrong. So instead of being nice to Peter they were very rude and unkind. People are often just like that. It made Peter feel very humble and not at all boastful, which, after all, was a very good thing for Peter.

WHY DO WE CALL THEM "DIGITS?"

The fact that the numerical symbols, 0, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 are called "digits" furnishes a sidelight on the progress of man's intellectual development. The explanation of "digit" to these numbers is simply an allusion to the fact that in the beginning man used his fingers to count.

The word "figure" is as a synonym for "digit" in the same picture.

when he was first learning to compute. Here is how it started:

"Digit" comes from the Latin root in the Greek digitus, meaning "finger." And the application of "digit" to these numbers is simply an allusion to the fact that in the beginning man used his fingers to count.

The word "figure" is as a synonym for "digit" in the same picture.

Its use for a mathematical symbol is puzzling till it is explained as a corruption of, or in association with, "finger."

the Pacific Coast League Rainiers, Vice-President Torchy Torrance announced today. Scribner, a righthander, came to Seattle from Spokane's Western International League club before the war.

Other developments reported today in the "rotating Rainier roster" were: Pitcher Joe Demoran was sold to Columbus of the American Association; Pitcher Jim Tobin drew his outright release; Infelder Joe Buzas joined the club from the Newark young prewar pitchers, is rejoining Bears.

Pageant Marking Centenary Well Attended at Royal Theatre

One hundred years of Catholic history in Victoria were depicted in Sister Mary Dorothea's colorful and dramatic pageant, "The Tenth Discade," at the Royal Theatre last night.

Playing to a capacity audience, the pageant, which commemorated the 100th anniversary of the founding of the diocese of Victoria, presented numerous colorful scenes of historical events on the Island.

"Dance of the Thunderbird," portrayed by Duncan Indians stirred in their tribal regalia, was one of the outstanding scenes of the pageant.

Other historical events—depicted were the arrival of Father Demers in Fort Vancouver in 1838 and his visit to Cowichan in 1855. Spectacular

Lumber Is Stolen From Vacant Lot

Approximately 1,000 feet of lumber was stolen from a vacant lot next to 1915-Wharf Street Tuesday night, D. Bone, reported to city police yesterday.

Mr. Bone said the lumber is used in the manufacture of toys.

Two claw hammers-owned by the Parfitt Construction Co. Ltd., were stolen from that company's construction job at the Pantomir Dry Works during the night, police said yesterday.

A large hole, which police said appeared to have been made with a rock, was discovered in a window of W. & J. Wilson's clothing store on Government Street early yesterday morning. The broken pane of glass measured ten feet square.

Prize Winners in Centenary Baby Contest

SEVERAL hundred persons attended a baby show yesterday at Loretto Hall, Belleville Street, held as part of the Roman Catholic Centenary celebrations.

In the above photograph are mothers of the four top-prize winners, the winners themselves, and

Lodge Street, and her daughter, Judith; Bishop J. C. Cody; Mrs. P. J. Leahy, 3436 Saanich Road, and her son, Stephen; and Rev. Father Cajetan, O.S.A., Ladner.

Each of the four babies pictured were presented with special silver medals. There were many other prizes awarded to other contestants.
